

Social Media Content: Revalidation Readiness Quiz

Strategy Overview

The goal is to drive traffic to the new `/quiz` page by triggering “Revalidation Anxiety” and offering immediate relief. We avoid “selling” RevalPro directly; instead, we sell the result of the quiz (peace of mind).

1. Facebook Group Post (The “Help Me” Angle)

Target: Nursing groups, Student Nurse groups. Tone: Humble, asking for feedback (avoids “self-promotion” bans).

Headline: “Is this accurate? Building a free tool for revalidation anxiety.”

Body: Hi everyone,

I’ve been working on a free tool to help nurses quickly check if they’re actually ready for revalidation (or if they’re missing something critical).

It’s a 60-second “Readiness Quiz” that gives you a score and a checklist of what’s missing. No login required to take it.

I’d love some feedback from the community:

1. Does the score feel accurate to where you are?
2. Is the checklist helpful?

Thanks in advance! P.S. It’s completely free, just trying to make something useful.

2. Instagram/Facebook Story (The “Fear” Angle)

Visual: A simple text graphic with a red background or a “stressed nurse” photo.

Text Overlay: “Do you know if you have enough practice hours logged?” “Don’t wait until the last month.”

Link Sticker: “Check Readiness Score” -> [Link to Quiz]

Caption: The #1 mistake we see? Nurses thinking they have “plenty of time” until they realize they’re missing a confirmation meeting. Take the 60-second check to be sure.

3. LinkedIn Post (The “Professional” Angle)

Target: Nurse Managers, Practice Educators. Tone: Professional, focused on compliance and support.

Headline: “Supporting your team through revalidation shouldn’t be a headache.”

Body: Revalidation is a vital part of our professional registration, yet it remains a significant source of stress for many nurses.

We’ve developed a simple, free “Readiness Assessment” to help nurses self-audit their progress in under a minute. It highlights gaps in:

- Practice Hours
- Reflections
- Confirmation status

If you’re a Practice Educator or Manager, feel free to share this with your team to help them stay on track.

4. Twitter/X Thread (The “Quick Tips” Angle)

Tweet 1: Revalidation due soon? Here are 3 things you might be forgetting:

1. Your 5 written reflections must link to the Code.
2. Your practice hours need verification evidence.
3. Your confirmer meeting needs to be booked WEEKS in advance.

Tweet 2: Not sure if you’ve got it all covered? We built a 60-second quiz to check your status. It gives you a “Readiness Score” and a personalized action plan.

Tweet 3: Take it here (free, no login): [Link to Quiz] Don’t risk your PIN!
